

Mexico Elects First Jewish and First Women President

In a landmark election, Claudia Sheinbaum has been elected as Mexico's first woman and first Jewish president, achieving a decisive victory on Sunday. Preliminary official results revealed Sheinbaum's win with approximately 58-60 percent of the votes, a significant lead over her main opponent, Xochitl Galvez, and long-shot candidate Jorge Alvarez Maynez. Supporters filled Mexico City's main square, celebrating with mariachi music and flag-waving, as Sheinbaum promised in her victory speech, "I won't fail you."
